Irving Bacheller Also Included in List

FOUR NEW MEMBERS ON TEACHING STAFF

Plan Wide Variety Of Courses in School

The program for the fourth session of the School of English at Bread Loaf, June 30 to August 14, has been announced by Dean Wilfred E. Davison. The staff includes four members of last year's faculty. Dr. Vernon C. Harrington, of the Middlebury Faculty, will give his course in Browning and the Caponsacchi monologue, which have become features of the School. Dr George F. Whicher, of Amherst College, will repeat the course in Creative Writing which aroused such enthusiasm last summer, the course in which were produced the poems and stories making up the Bread Loaf number of the Saxonian. Mrs. Harriet Fox Whicher, a member of the faculty of Mount Holyoke College, will give again her popular course in Modern Poetry. Donald M. Oenslager, for three years Art Director of the Harvard Dramatic Club and on the Artistic and Producing Force of The 47 Workshop, will give a course in Problems and Practice of Stage Design. Middlebury people will remember Mr. Oenslager's work in the settings of The 47 Workshop plays recently presented at the College.

Four new teachers have been added to the staff this year. Prof. Clinton H. Collester, of Simmons College, will give courses in Public Oral Exposition and Oral Methods; Miss Leonora Branch, of Mount Holyoke College, courses in The Modern Essay and Literary Appreciation; Prof. Allen Crafton, formerly a member of The 47 Workshop, now of the faculty of Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., courses in The Development of English Drama and The One-Act Play. In connection with the course in The One-Act Play, Mr. Crafton and Mr. Oenslager will conduct the work in play production in the Little Theater, which has been so interesting a feature of the School. A course of especial interest to teachers, Modern Problems in Teaching English, will be given by Miss Cora A. Newton, Supervisor of Training and Instructor in Methods, State Normal School, Bridgewater, Mass. Classes will be conducted from 8:30 to 12:30

Intercollegiate Ball To Feature Easter Vacation

Annual Social Event To Be Held At Hotel Pennsylvania April 3—Ferncroft Orchestra To Play

(Special to THE CAMPUS)

New York City, March 20.—Plans for the most pretentious Easter Intercollegiate Ball to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania on April 3, were made public by the committee in charge, headed by Lawrence W. Warren of Syracuse University, today. It is anticipated that the leading event of the Easter holiday social season will attract a large number of men from all the leading eastern colleges. This has been particularly noticable in the purchase of large blocks of tickets by Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Dartmouth. From present indications representatives from all New England colleges will be in attendance.

The large ballroom of the Hotel Pennsylvania will be the scene of all activity while the famous Ferncroft orchestra has been secured to supply the music for the occasion.

TWENTY INITIATED INTO PHI BETA KAPPA SOCIETY

The annual initiation of the Phi Beta Kappa society was held Saturday evening, at eight o'clock at the Addison House. Contrary to the usual custom, the initiation was an informal one taking the place of the chapel exercise of past years. Twenty new members were awarded the golden keys. Following the initiation a banquet was served to the society, Prof. W. S. Burrage, Professor V. P. Harrington, Professor Harriman and Judge Burton spoke on the subject of "Advice to Initiates."

NOTED INSTRUCTORS IN SPANISH FACULTY

Dean Of School Announces Summer Session Members

Offer A Wide Range Of Advance Courses in School

To maintain the standard set up in previous sessions the Spanish School for the summer of 1923 will have a notable roster of eminent Spanish instructors. Professor Moreno-Lacalle, the Dean of the School, has given out a list of the members who will constitute his faculty for next summer.

Doctor Cesar Barja, who has already established for himself a wide reputation as a profound scholar and able lecturer thru his connection with the School during the three past summers, will be Associate Dean in charge of the Granada section. His book on Spanish classic literature published last summer and used for the first time in the session of 1922, has met with great success both in this country and in Spain. The most authoritative critics in Spain have pronounced it the best book of its kind ever published.

As the visiting professor from Spain the Summer Session has been fortunate in securing the services of Senorita Maria de Maeztu, President of the Residencia de Senoritas de Madrid, Doctor of Philosophy by the University of Madrid. Dr. de Maetzu is one of the most prominent literary women of Spain and a leader in the feminist movement in that country. In the summer of 1919 she made a brilliant success at Columbia University. On the occasion of her first visit, Smith College conferred upon her the honorary degree of LL.D.

Dr. Primitivo R. Sanjurjo of the University of Madrid, late instructor at Cornell University and now an assistant professor in the Spanish Department of Middlebury College, will again teach next summer, having charge of the courses in Spanish Realia, History of Spanish Literature, and Spanish Literary Topics.

Miss Milagros de Alda who is also a member of the College Faculty, and who taught here in the summer of 1920, will have charge of the courses in Elementary Spanish Phonetics, and the Realist Novel of the Twentieth Century, and will deliver six lectures on the Spanish women of letters.

Miss Francisca Martinez, who has taught in the Spanish School since the summer of 1919 will again assist Professor Lacalle in the session of 1923. She is head of the Spanish Department

'VARSITY DEBATERS TO MEET HAMILTON AT CLINTON FRIDAY

U. V. M. Forensic Representatives Speak Here Tuesday

ARGUE WAR DEBTS

Team Leaves For New York College Tomorrow Morning

The Varsity forensic team, consisting of Gallagher '23, Savitt '25, and K. Anderson '25, will leave tomorrow morning for Clinton, N. Y., where they will meet the strong Hamilton contingent Friday evening on the question of Allied debt cancellation. Mr. John Wright, instructor and coach in debating, will accompany the team. Another Middlbury team, composed of M. Anderson '25, Austin '23, and Toleman '24, will debate a delegation from the University of Vermont Tuesday evening in Mead Chapel.

The debaters have mastered the subject thoroughly and go up against the New Yorkers with abundant confidence. Hamilton, however, has debated the question with several other institutions this season as well as last with varying success, so that it is by no means new to her. The locals feel that this advantage is to a large degree offset by the fact that Middlebury is upholding a little the strongest position; namely, that the Allied war debts should not be cancelled. The accuracy of this surmise can better be determined when the judges have announced their decision on merits of the debate.

The main speeches of the debate will be ten minutes in length, while each speaker will be given the opportunity of a seven-minute rebuttal. Between the main speeches and the rebuttals, an intermission of five minutes will be allowed for the assembling of material.

In the contest with U. V. M. Tuesday, the locals will contend for the affirmative side of the question. Although Vermont can not boast of a reputation in debating which would compare in any way to that of Hamilton, she can be depended on to put up a stiff contest against her old rival on the debating platform as well as on the athletic field.

FIRST CUT IN TRACK SQUAD COMING AFTER VACATION

Many members of the present track squad will remain in Middlebury during the vacation it became known today, while those who will spend the spring holiday at their homes will be given specific training instructions by Coach Arthur M. Brown in order that they will have an equal chance with those remaining here to make the 'varsity squad. The first cut in the squad will be made at the try-outs immediately following the vacation, and intensive training will then start.

DOT TAYLOR '24, ELECTED PRESIDENT OF Y. W. C. A.

The annual elections for officers of the Y. W. C. A. for the next year were held at a meeting of the association in the Old Chapel, yesterday afternoon The results of the elections were as follows: president, Dorothy Taylor '24; vice-president, Helen Lingham '24; treasurer, Dorothy Tillapaugh '25; sub-undergraduate representative, Katherine Mix '25, secretary, Florence Smith '26.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB TO SING FRIDAY

Concert To Be Given In Opera House

Professor Alfred Larsen To Direct Singing

Middlebury's "best-ever" Glee Club, 30 strong, will present its first home concert of the season in the Opera House Friday evening, Mar. 23. Prof. Alfred Larsen, director of the Club and teacher of violin, will conduct.

The program, which is essentially the same as that presented on the February trip when the Club sang at Newport, St. Johnsbury, and Montpelier, was especially selected and arranged by Prof. Larsen. It is of a semi-popular type, though not in the least "jazzy." To those who enjoy really good music by a highly trained men's chorus, it can not fail to prove a delight.

The Club, in toto, offers four selections of a varied nature, winding up the program with "Song of The Marching Men" by Hadley, a stirring song of war and victory. Undoubtedly, in accordance with its usual custom, the Club will follow the regular program with a rendering of the college songs which proved so popular on the February trip.

The string quartet, composed of Messrs Prata, Lee, Botsford, and Spaulding, and especially trained by Prof. Larsen, will offer at least two numbers, while Prata, violin soloist, will also occupy two positions on the program. Prata's solo work elicited especially warm praise from the music-lovers of Montpelier, a city which is accustomed to hear the very best in music. Allan Hunter, who will render two groups of vocal solos, has also proved very popular at all the previous concerts. The work of Harry G. Owen at the piano has always been without flaw, his piano solos receiving a hearty hand at all the February appearances. The male quartet, consisting of first tenor, Michael Lorenzo; second tenor, Allan Hunter; first bass, W. A. Huggard; second bass, Lester Watson, has three groups which they have reduced to a high state of perfection, under the careful tutelage of Miss. Minnie Hayden, teacher of voice.

AXTELL AND LAFORCE HAVE LEADING ROLES IN THE JUNIOR PLAY

Seven Men And Three Women Chosen For Cast

JOHN BARRYMORE IN PLAY'S ORIGINAL CAST

Main Action Of Play Centers In Colorado Jail

Seven men and three women were chosen for the cast of "Believe Me, Xantippe," the Junior Play, by the committee, and the announcement was made public early this week. The title roles will be held by Maynard J. Axtell as George MacFarland, and Miss Helen G. LaForce as Dolly Kamman. Rehearsals will be started at once in order to insure a finished production for Junior Week.

The play was a leading New York hit when originally produced there in 1918, and the leading character parts were handled by John Barrymore, the noted actor, and Mary Young. Also included in the cast was Theodore Roberts, one of the leading comedians of the silver screen. Its presentation at The Thirty-Ninth Street Theater in New York elicited great praise from the critics, while the masterful handling of the parts by Mr. Barrymore and Young was lauded constantly by dramatic writers. The play possesses a wealth of situations and calls for the highest grade of acting on the part of the cast.

The main action of the play cen-

"Ruhr Invasion Technically Right—Morally Wrong"

Co-Eds Believe Economic Conference Would Alleviate Distress And Avert Crisis

At the last meeting of The Student Government Association, an affirmative vote was taken to act on the request received from the National Student Forum to send to President Harding, Sec. of State Hughes, and Senator Borah, an expression of the student opinion of the Ruhr question. A committee was appointed to draw up the resolutions which were later discussed and voted on by the Women's College. The resolutions were:

1. That France was technically right, under the treaty of Versailles, but morally wrong, in invading the Ruhr because such action would involve the revival of international discord.

2. That the present situation will tend to international war and a more chaotic condition in Europe.

3. That because of the close association and common interest between nations the problems of one ultimately will effect those of the others and either retard or advance the progress of all. We believe that from the moral standpoint the U. S. should take action by means of her resources and influence politically and economically. We believe that an economic conference would alleviate distress and help to avert the crisis.

Though an affirmative vote was taken to send the resolutions to Washington, the letter was not sent as there was so much dissention over the matter, and as such a large majority felt that they knew too little about it to express an opinion.

A CHALLENGE

One of the great problems which every student must face at some time in his college career is that of the reconciliation of his inherited religious beliefs with the scientific spirit which he encounters in his studies. There has wrongly come to be a breach between religion and science and the college, as the exponent of science, has been unjustly accused of teaching heresies.

The only cure for this false situation is an increasingly deeper acquaintance with both religion and science. A thorough and honest examination into the underlying truths of each will prove them to be not at all at variance with each other. Indeed, science and knowledge can be the greatest aids in attaining the truest and best religious conceptions, while a religion based upon ignorance and blind acceptance is of no great value.

This is, however, no easy task and the struggle through doubts and apparent contradictions requires the best intellectual efforts of which the student is capable. Brains are needed in formulating a creed far more than in any other matter of study.

Religion offers a challenge to the finest minds to understand its problems and to grasp its mysteries. The student who rejects this challenge will leave college either with his former faith shattered and nothing to take its place, or with his old faith intact and a stubborn refusal to adopt any of the enlightenment of science. The student who accepts the challenge will carry away with him as one of the most priceless results of his college experience a firm and infinitely more vital personal faith.

PHI BETA KAPPA

The record number of students initiated into the Middlebury Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa during the past week merits recognition, for they have achieved an honor which only the "best minds" are permitted to possess. It is to the members of this organization who have gone before who started the work which brought Middlebury into its present high scholastic position. Not only have they been successful in the field of commerce and industry, as well as in the professions, but the alumni records recount far greater deeds for them. But most of all, these men and women have not forgotten in their later lives that they were Middlebury men and Middlebury women. As they have achieved honor for themselves, they have added luster to the name of their College. May the members of the Class of 1923 whose honor it was to be among those chosen for membership in Phi Beta Kappa, carry on, and thus add greater glory to the "College on the Hill."

ATTEND THE SUMMER SESSION

The initial announcements of two of the five Summer Schools contained elsewhere in these columns, is just one more indication of the high goal Middlebury is seeking to reach. The bringing of men and women from the leading educational institutions, and the supplementing of their work by special lectures from authorities, means much to those who have the opportunity as well as the inclination to attend. It should mean more, however, for it should give to each one of the people attending these various schools an insight into what Middlebury College is and what it is doing.

The success of these schools in the past cannot go unnoticed. Each year the enrollment has been larger, while the quality of the work has not deteriorated. Many who have spent the summer here have regretted that they were unable to remain through the regular session. These facts not only indicate that the school is successful, but likewise show that the schools are meeting a real need.

The advantages offered undergraduates at the Summer Session schools cannot be fully understood until the experience has become a part of their lives. The associations in the class room with persons possessing older and more mature minds; the intensive study periods; and the constant co-operation of teacher and student combine to make the experience most worthwhile and satisfying.

Too often we hear a student complain that he does not have the opportunity to specialize and that instead of securing the courses he most desires, certain restrictive clauses prevent him from taking them. This disadvantage is, to a large degree, overcome in the summer school, for here each student specializes in either English, French, Spanish, Chemistry or Music. Would it not be well for you to consider these facts before deciding on how you will spend your summer vacation?

THE PERISCOPE

This verse may perhaps be quite jerky,
The impression I leave may be murky,
But to make this thing rhyme,
I'll say at this time,
The only word I can use is Albuquerque!

"One good turn deserves another," remarked the Childs' Lunch Chef as he flipped the pancake in the air.

One of the co-eds was heard to remark at one of the dances the other night that if each of the coming dances was to increase the soft lighting effects in the same proportion as the previous ones, the Junior Prom would in all probability be held in the dark!

Mead Chapel Continues Its Diary

THURSDAY:

If that sun gets any hotter I greatly fear that my complexion will be totally ruined! Everybody seems to be winded from coming up the hill. Wonder how they'd like to have to stand in one place all the time? Hurry up, old man, you've just got about one minute to go. I like that hymn they're singing today. Those girls ought to stop looking at the men so much. Wonder why the men stride out and try so hard to avoid walking out with the girls?

FRIDAY:

It's a wonder that somebody doesn't lose his balance and roll all the way down the hill on that icy walk. Hold 'er, Newt—I was sure he'd crash right into those girls! They didn't look as tho they'd have minded it in the least! Oh, dear, here comes the man to ring the evening chimes. I hope he strikes the right notes tonight!

SATURDAY:

The week's almost over, thank goodness! Wonder why everybody is so sleepy this mornnig? Oh yes, they had a lecture here last night on The Ephereal Feathered-Folk of the Epicurean Era, by Prof. O. Kanhee Blowhard of Useless University. It was a very nice talk but I didn't understand all of what he said.

SUNDAY:

What a lovely afternoon! The students must think so, too, because nearly all the seats are empty. It really is a shame to be so rude to the speaker. He can't preach, and his voice is too low for the people up in the balcony to hear what he is saying, I know, but oh, he has such a nice personality! Well, another week is over.

One could almost say that March 17th was "Frosh Day" because their pea-greens made very appropriate decorations for the day set aside for good Saint Patrick!

The other day during one of the quizzes to which the college folks are exposed, the professor was collecting the papers bearing the testimony of our ignorance and before giving out another set he asked the question: "All in?"

One of the students immediately volunteered an answer: "WE'RE all in."

On a certain quiz the other day the question "Who is Coue?" appeared. One of the students had a faint glimmer of an idea concerning his identity. He hazily recollected hearing that he was the famous "autosuggestor," so he immediately wrote: "Coue was the man who suggested the auto."

Harvard Professor Speaks On "Law as a Profession"

Prof. Felix Frankfurter Gives Listeners Glimpse of Legal Profession From the Inside

"Law, as a Profession," was the subject of a vocational lecture by Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard Law School in Chemistry Lecture Room Friday evening. In a masterful manner, Prof. Frankfurter sketched the history of law as a profession from its earliest stages.

"The lawyer," he said, "has never been popular but has always been indispensable to the life of the community, the nation, and the universe. Many have a misconception of the law because they believe it constitutes merely the legal transactions, murder trials, and divorce cases of which they read in the daily papers. These make up a relatively small proportion of legal activities. Law is the system adopted to control the friction of society by reason, not by force. The broad scope of the law has six important divisions.

"First, there are counsellors, those who administer advice to the public. This branch of the profession is probably best known, though not the one from which an opinion of the profession should be formed. Then there are the professors of law, those members of the profession who choose to train the future lawyers of the nation in colleges and universities. Thirdly, we might mention commercial lawyers, whose work lays in the admiralty courts.

"A fourth division is that of the public service lawyer, wherein we find the personal lawyers. This branch perhaps offers better opportunities than any other. Then we have patent lawyers, who offer their services to the inventors of the day to protect their inventions thru the medium of patents. Besides these there is the customs lawyer, who makes it his specialty to defend cases which have to do with customs, duties and revenues.

"It is surprising," Prof. Frankfurter concluded, "what a large number of men who have been trained in other kinds of work drift into law. Comparatively few actually choose the law for their life work, though many choose it with the view of getting a general training to enter politics, real estate bargaining, or other business. In this assumption they are correct, but it necessarily crowds an honourable profession with men of nondescript type."

"Prexy" Speaks At English Club

A meeting of the English Club was held in Pearsons Social Hall, Wednesday evening, at which President Paul D. Moody gave a talk upon his experiences as a publisher's reader. He outlined the duties of a person in that position and spoke of the variety and interest of the work. He told some interesting anecdotes about the well known writers which he had met in connection with his work. He spoke of the many different things which a publisher must take into account when he brings out a book and gave some of the reasons for the success or failure of books. He defined the publishing business as the greatest gamble in the world. President Moody closed his talk by answering the questions asked by the members of the club.

COMMUNICATION

"Observer" Objects To Vote Taken On Ruhr Invasion By Members Of Women's College

To the Editor of The Campus:

The graves of 70,000 American soldiers who gave their lives that France and the world might be freed from the menace of German Imperialism are still fresh. These men and two million more from our country who fought with them had not the privilege or the desire to send petitions to Washington seeking to influence the policy of our government. They were content to let their deeds speak for themselves and to give their lives, if need be, for the ideals for which they fought.

But the young ladies of Middlebury College, few of whom have had the privilege of serving their country or the world, consider, with sublime assurance, that the five minutes between the morning chapel service and ten-thirty classes are ample in which to decide that those 70,000 men, and the 2,000,000 more of our allies who made the supreme sacrifice, died in vain, that their work should be undone, and that poor, abused, misjudged Germany, through losing the war, should be allowed to win the peace by escaping the consequences of her own unprovoked and brutal depredations.

History shows us Germany as a bully among nations, cruel, overbearing and merciless when victorious; snivelling, whining and unrepentant when defeated. In the present circumstances she is fully living down to her reputation. During four years she has successfully blocked or evaded all attempts to make her pay the reparations which she promised to pay when she signed the treaty of Versailles.

France, having expended huge sums in rebuilding the regions devastated by the Hun invasion, and counting on the German payments to make good these expenditures, has been brought to the verge of bankruptcy. She is faced with a desperate alternative. Germany must be made to pay or France will be ruined. She knows that the big business interests of England and America, desiring only trade with Germany, care little for her plight, and so she has taken the only means within her power, brought economic pressure to bear on Germany through her occupation of the Ruhr.

Germany, who remembers how well these methods succeeded against France in 1870, and knows only too well that unless she can shake off French pressure she will be forced to disgorge, has started a campaign of villification and innuendo, which seeks to alienate France's former allies, and to gain sympathy for Germany. Aided by the interests which I have mentioned and by many well-meaning but ill-advised pacifists and humanists, who have become alarmed by the German coined catch-five days a week, afternoons and Saturdays being left free for hiking and other recreations.

The special lecturers this year include President Moody, Robert Frost, poet, author of "North of Boston," "A Boy's Will"and other poetry; Irving Bacheller, the novelist, author of "Eben Holden." Wright, the first Dean of the English School, for thirty-five years Head of the English Department at Middlebury.

The hiking activities of the School will again be under the direction of Dr. and Mrs. Vernon C. Harrington. They will be assisted on the week-end trips by Mr. Walbridge B. Fullington, Middlebury '20, a hike leader last summer, and Miss Alice H. Schilling, of Stockbridge, Mass., a former member of the School. Prof. Clinton H. Collester and Prof. Thomas E. Boyce, Middlebury '76, and a former member of the College Faculty, will assist with the short hikes. The usual week-end trips will be conducted to Emily Proctor Lodge, Sucker Brook and other points.

Mrs. William Mills will again act as Manager of the Inn. A bulletin containing preliminary announcements is now available at the office of Dr. Edward D. Collins, Director of the Summer Session. A more detailed bulletin is in press. Miss Helen W. Blanchard, secretary of the School, reports that the early registration indicates a record attendance at Bread Loaf.

Prof. A. M. Kline will also be among the lecturers at Breadlioaf this summer.

OVER 250 ATTEND HOME ECK CLUB CAFETERIA

The largest attendance ever present at a cafeteria supper in Middlebury attended the supper given by the Home Economics Club, last Wednesday evening in the Woman's Club Rooms. Over two hundred and fifty were present.

The purpose of the supper was to raise money to enable the Club to engage some noted worker in the Home Economics field to give a lecture or a demonstration on some point of interest. This lecture will be open to the student body, the faculty and all town's people wishing to attend. The proceeds of the supper have not been ascertained as yet.

All who attended declared the supper to be a great success, and much credit is due the members of the Club who did all the cooking and made all the preparations themselves. The following served as heads of committees.

Wells River Pastor Tells Of The Bible's Greatness

Preacher Declares Bible Has Suffered From Both Literal Interpreter And Critic

"All scripture is given by inspiration of God and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness," Tim. II, 3-16, was the text chosen at the vesper service last Sunday by the Rev. Donald Fraser of Wells River, Vt. The greatness of the Bible, the book which has maintained its power for more than 2000 years, was the theme of the sermon.

"The Bible has suffered," said Mr. Fraser, "from two types. It has suffered first from those who idolize it and consider its word infallible. Secondly it has suffered from the critics who point out its crudities and its imperfections.

"Notwithstanding, this book," he continued, "still holds its supremacy. It has been translated into all languages and is read by practically all nations. This is due to its great usefulness to mankind."

HOME ECK CLUB THANKS PUBLIC FOR SUPPORT

The Executive Committee of the Home Economics Club wishes to thank the faculty, the student body, and the town's people for their help and support which made the cafeteria supper such a success.

Axtell And LaForce Play Leading Parts In "Believe Me, Xantippe"

ters in Colorado where MacFarland, after eluding detectives and others searching for him for nearly a year is caught by Dolly Kamman, the sheriff's daughter when he suddenly exclaims his pet phrase, "Believe me, Xantippe!" The girl places him under arrest as a fugitive from justice, and before turning him over to her father encounters another arch-criminal, whom MacFarland aids her in capturing.

MacFarland entertained a quaint idea as to the power of officers of the law in tracing down criminals, had entered into a wager with his friends that they could not find him after he committed a crime, for a period of one year. Should he be caught during this time he would lose $30,000. When informed of his capture in Colorado his friends immediately hurry from New York but by a trick, they are told he is elsewhere and when they learn that the information is false, MacFarland has left the jail and is headed for Arizona. From this point the action is very rapid, but to tell the details would spoil the presentation of what would seem to be the best Junior Class play that has been produced here in many years. Suffice it to say that the closing scene will delight the romance-seekers, and send everyone home with the thought that they lived happily ever after.

The High Diving Contests Are Over

THE days of seeing how fast you can chase a shaving cream cap down the drain pipe are past. For here is a cap that can't get lost. It's hinged on. Think what a lot of minutes it will save. No matter how carelessly you handle your shaving apparatus, the cap is on to stay.

With a convenience like this cap you might be tempted to use Williams' Shaving Cream whether you cared much for the cream or not. But once you use Williams' you'll like it as well as you do the cap. For Williams' breaks all records for fast softening of the beard. And more, it is good for the skin—soothes it, keeps it in good condition always.

Test a tube of Williams' by judging it on every point you can think of—speed, lather, comfort. See if you don't think it's noticeably better.

Notice the hinged cap. You can't lose it—and the tube hangs up!

John Hancock Said:—
(IN 1774)

"I HAVE ever considered it as the indispensable duty of every member of society to promote, as far as in him lies, the prosperity of every individual, but more especially of the community in which he belongs."

Life insurance is inseparably bound up with the prosperity of every individual, family and community. It is a secure and prosperous business and satisfactory to the salesman in every way.

The JOHN HANCOCK would like to interest a few ambitious men who graduate this year to make JOHN HANCOCK selling their life work.

Statistics on college graduates who have entered life insurance place it at the very top as a source of income. Before making a decision as to your career it would be well to make inquiries of the "Agency Department."

"Observer" Says Men Of Army Let Deeds Speak For Themselves

word "French Imperialism," Germany has succeeded in subsidizing a large part of the American press, and through it, American public opinion.

Would it not be in better taste if our young women, instead of issuing a hasty and perhaps prejudiced edict to the effect that France is "morally wrong" in doing what we ourselves would certainly do under like circumstances, should leave to more mature minds and riper judgments the settlement of such exceedingly complicated and delicate international questions, and confine themselves to the numerous and pressing domestic problems in which their budding minds would find ample scope for exercise and development?

"Scullions' Ball" Huge Success

One of the most successful as well as novel of the formal dances ever held at Middlebury was the "Scullions' Ball" given by the men who aid daily in the feeding of the hungry males at Commons, in Hepburn Social Hall last Saturday evening. The room was tastefully decorated with black and white streamers forming a canopy for the dancers, and boxes of greens placed so as to form an artistic corner for the chaperones. The supper was served during the intermission and was featured by the singing of the scullion' song and the election of Dean "Cap" Wiley to honorary membership in the Club. The committee in charge of the function consisted of Leary '25, Frank '26 and Ehlert '26.

The chaperones were Mrs. Paul D. Moody, Dean and Mrs. Wiley, Dr. and Mrs. Harrington, and Dean Ross. Coach and Mrs. Morey, and Professor Felix Frankfurter were guests of the Club.

SCHOOL OF CHEMICAL ENGINEERING PRACTICE

A graduate school offering a course of study leading to the degree of Master of Science, with field stations established at six different companies located in Bangor, Maine; Boston, Mass.; and Buffalo, N. Y. These companies produce sulphite and soda pulp, paper, caustic soda, chlorine, heavy acids and salts, sugar, coke, gas, steel, ammonia, benzol, etc.

The more important operations of Chemical Engineering, as typified by the above processes, are studied systematically by means of tests and experimental work on full scale plant apparatus. One of the objects of this work is to fix in the mind of the student the principles of Chemical Engineering and to correlate these principles with practice.

The work is non-remunerative and is independent of control by the plant management, and therefore the whole attention of the student is directed to the study of Chemical Engineering.

The total number admitted to the school is limited and the students, studying and experimenting in small groups, receive individual instruction.

Before admission to the School of Chemical Engineering Practice, all students must have adequate preparation in chemistry and engineering. The able student can complete the requirements for the Master of Science degree in one and one-half years.

At the present time, thirty-one colleges and universities are represented among the men attending the School of Chemical Engineering Practice and these men comprise over one-half the enrollment.

For further details address: R. T. Haslam, Director, Room 2-131
